while the fate of africa is much discussed in the west westerners rarely hear the voices of africans themselves in the debate over the future of this imperiled continent pan africanism aims to unite the many different peoples of africa and the diaspora in the west indies latin america the u s and the u k as a political movement pan africanism first found expression 100 years ago and has since then waxed and waned according to wars economic and political tides and the often fickle vicissitudes of western influence bringing together over a dozen influential writers political leaders and activists pan africanism defines what constitutes the movement as we approach the millennium by addressing such subjects as the role of science and technology in africa s future and the potential for a pan african women s movement the writers offer a valuable overview of the political economy of uniting across the continent and beyond at a time when the threat of recolonization looms large annotations ranging from 75 to 125 words accompany citations of books chapters and articles in scholarly journals that are available in most public and college libraries provides access to secondary material mostly for students researching the pan african movement the idea that all african people should cooperate in freeing themselves from outside domination the sections are arranged from general studies through treatments of organizations movements and individuals to theoretical works includes an overall and section introductions no subject index annotation copyright by book news inc portland or chronicles and examines the origins development directions and leaders of pan africanism and african nationalism in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries in africa america and europe essays on pan africanism begins with essays by shiraz durrani abdilatif abdulla issa shivji firoze manji sabatho nyamsenda willy mutunga and noosim naimasiah on various aspects of pan africanism this is followed by remembering the champions of african liberation with articles on patrice lumumba by antoine lokongo abdulrahman babu by amrit wilson makhan singh by hindpal singh and piyo rattansi followed by tajudeen abdul raheem s last pan african postcard 2009 and debating and documenting africa a conversation the preface pan african thought is by prof issa shivji the book incorporates karim essack s compilation the pan african path 1993 with historical records and documents on pan african history with a new preface by prof issa shivji the final section has documents on pan africanism including the kampala declaration 1994

a guyanese by birth and a kenyan by citizenship ras makonnen would still regard these two aspects of his life as accidents of history his roots and destiny are in the continent of africa for the last half of the twentieth century he has striven along with the other major architects of pan africanism to reconcile the forces that still divide the continent this volume is a further contribution to that struggle makonnen s analysis of the pan african movement starts in the former british guiana guyana in the early twenties warms up to the north american scene where as a young man he got increasingly more aware of the african and diasporic african person s position in world history he then describes his days in london and manchester from the mid thirties to the fifties accra ghana until the fall of kwame nkrumah in 1966 and thereafter nairobi kenya where he worked and made his transition although the narrative is peppered with the most delightful character sketches of early african and other black leaders the author s main concern is to interpret the quality of life amongst black people at home and abroad he does so by employing a wide historical perspective and by infusing into his study of particular pan african actors his knowledge of the intellectual and political climate at large he produces in the process a vivid participator s commentary on whole areas that have been quite neglected in conventional studies of pan africanism black intergroup relations in north america and the african diaspora in the caribbean race relations in britain black intellectuals and the white left black expatriates and african socialism these are just a few of the themes examined against a background of individual famous personalities as well as others not documented before with an autobiographical thread that runs throughout makonnen s narrative is a uniquely diversified pan african portrait there is no recent literature that underscores the transition from pan africanism to diaspora discourse this book examines the gradual shift and four major transformations in the study of pan africanism it offers an academic post mortem that seeks to gauge the extent to which pan africanism overlaps with the study of the african diaspora and reverse migrations how diaspora studies has penetrated various disciplines while pan africanism is located on the periphery of the field the book argues that the gradual shift from pan african discourses has created a new pathway for engaging pan african ideology from academic and social perspectives also the book raises questions about the recent political waves that have swept across north africa and their implications to the study of twenty first century pan african solidarity on the african continent the ways in which african institutions are attracting and mobilizing returnees and pan africanists with incentives as dual citizenship for diasporans to support reforms in africa offers a new alternative approach for exploring pan african ideology in the twenty first century returnees are also using these incentives to gain economic and cultural advantage the book will appeal to policy makers government institutions research libraries undergraduate and graduate students and scholars from many different disciplines first published in 2003 this study analyzes contributions made by kwame nkrumah 1909 1972 to the development of pan african agency from the 1945 pan african congress in manchester to the military coup d etat of nkrumah s government in february 1966

this book a collection of articles from the pages of the the black scholar represents the essence of black intellectual thought on the subject of pan africanism pan africanism traces the development of pan africanism using the documents of pan africanists and their organizations to give voice to the many people and institutions instrumental in its growth in this second edition esedebi extends his discussion from the mid 1960s into the 1990s for about one hundred years pan africanism as a social cultural economic political and philosophical idea thrived towards the tail end of the twentieth century however it waned but in more recent times there has been noticeable resurgence and as we approach the second decade of the twenty first century there are indications of significant transformations vis à vis the role and place of pan africanism and pan africanists consequently this book offers a new further and better understanding of pan africanism not just from the traditional african and african american points of view but also from a global perspective it does so by offering an analysis of its early years in terms of the personalities ideas and conferences that shaped it it also examines many of the factors that brought about its decline and its eventual rebirth contributing to this seminal work are scholars of different but complementary styles and intellect who deviate from the more traditional or obvious approaches for instance one of the chapters explores pan africanism from the geographic perspective while another examines the role and place of women in the pan african movement there are also voices that advance the conversation from the regional and continental viewpoint hence chapters that investigate the status of pan africanism in latin america in the caribbean and islam and pan africanism in the modern world ethnonationalism and xenophobia are also part of the treatise because increasingly these injurious phenomena are reemerging in africa's landscape and consciousness in an increasingly interdependent and interrelated world this book also suggests that pan africanism will undergo a metamorphosis problems and challenges will be seen and tackled from the globalization and global common perspective pan africanism in modern times goes beyond the historicity of pan africanism and examines the challenges concerns and constraints it faces and also examines it from an inclusive perspective to have a broader understanding of this phenomenon and its future trajectory the book reinforces the verdict that pan africanism in the nkrumah era represented the most important indigenous political force on the african continent the most significant single african attempt to affect in an important way the speed and direction of social change in africa the core period in this study 1957 1966 represents the most potent phase in the history of this redemptive movement in africa nkrumah's efforts at influence could not and did not take the same form in the three east african countries in every case political ideological contextual factors dictated the pattern of input in tanzania where nyerere's calculated and studied evolutionism was the main concern the main line of attack was geared to pushing the tanzanian leader and his people toward nkrumah s immediatist continental integration formula against the background of a changing world order colonial powers frequently challenged pan africanism and the reasonable arguments voiced in pan african congresses in pan africanism visions initiatives and transformations mano delea highlights how pan africanism moved its epicenter as the circumstances of world politics changed from the diaspora to africa where it was transformed and institutionalized unlike other research done on pan africanism delea offers three new additions to this academic research by addressing and analyzing the responses of leading historical newspapers to the pan african congresses from 1900 to 1945 examining the transformation of and division between pan africanism as a social movement and as an institutionalized phenomenon and discussing the epistemologies and knowledge production within pan africanism throughout its history a lively and accessible exploration of the changing dimensions of pan african thought and practice essential reading for anyone interested in politics identity and development in africa and the african diaspora
